COPYING MACHINE.

Will Revolutionize The Photograph Business In Many Respects

R. Bowles, the well known photographer, has entered the field of invention with a device for copying and retouching photographs that supplies a need that long been felt by photographers. Mr. Bowles has been in the business here for 18 years and for more than half of that time has been at work on the machine he has at last perfected and patented. He is now putting the device on the market. It is made here in Hopkinsville and consists of a tin or iron box in semi-circular shape, about 18 inches high. Its painted white inside and is equipped with electric light bulbs. The only opening is directly in the front and is fixed so that slides may be moved into the grooves that are pre-first intention was to use it in making pictures but in addition to this purpose it has been found to be a variety of ways. In all the cases it can be used one of the features about it is that it is where it can be used for himself or for any person, company or institution. The machine or mechanism is deposited in the hands of the first Mayor or violation of league next year and an intention was extended to Guy Elchert of Cairo, owner of the Cairo club, the days when that city was in big ring.

MOISANT AND HO KILLED ON SATURDAY

Two Great Aviators Dashed to Death
Saturday Before Great

IN WIDELY SEPARATE PLACES.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 31.—Leaving the City Park aviation field at 9:30 o'clock this morning full of life, vigor and hope, his eyes sparkling in anticipation of adding to his country's glory by bringing the Michelin cup to America, John S. Moisant, one of the world's most daring and skillful aviators, flew over New Orleans, but to meet death riding the wings of the wind in Harahan, eleven miles above the city, just 20 minutes after.

A gust of wind upset his machine, a biplane Monoplane, and he was thrown from the seat. Moisant described a grim curve through the air, and fell first, like a diver, shot down, landing on his back and head. His left wing was broken.

Los Angeles, Dec. 31.—The winds, those treacheries, An Hoxsey so often defied and conquered, killed the noted aviator. As if jealous

SLOT ORDINANCE Requiring Permit For Slot Machines.

The Board of Civil has passed the following ordinance:
That it shall be lawful for any person to own, use or operate for himself or for any person, company or institution, any slot machine or mechanism in this city of Hopkinsville, provided the same be deposited in the hands of the first Mayor or violation of league next year and an intention was extended to Guy Elchert of Cairo, owner of the Cairo club, the days when that city was in big ring.

ROLL WAS CALLED. At The First Baptist Church Sunday Morning.

Sunday the annual roll call service was held at the Baptist church and in spite of the rainy weather a large proportion of the 300 members were present and answered to their names. When their names were called some rose and spoke a few words, others gave quotations from the scriptures, others sang a verse or an appropriate hymn. The service was taken up with a sermon by Thompson preached on the usual communion

JOE WOLFE'S LEG BROKEN

Popular Policeman Suffers A
Bad Accident
Saturday.

ALIGHTING FROM TRAIN.

Will Be Disabled For Many Weeks—Had Accident.
Insurance.

Policeman Jos. R. Wolfe suffered the fracture of his right ankle in alighting from a train at the I. C. "Y" Saturday afternoon about four o'clock.

A large number of people were leaving the city on the train, and Mr. Wolfe got on the train according to a custom of the policemen to ride down to the "Y" to see that no disorder occurred among the excursionists. When the train slowed up he alighted and as he jumped to the ground his ankle turned and both bones snapped. He did not fall, but called to some railroad men on a handcar that he was hurt and they brought him back to town and he was taken in a carriage to his home on Brown street.

Dr. F. P. Thomas set the broken limb and no bad results are expected, except that the officer will be laid up for at least two months.

Policeman Wolfe was elected to the force one year ago and his service has been excellent and altogether praiseworthy. He was assigned night duty for the year 1911. He has been serving at night during the winter and was not working in his own time when hurt but had been down town early and volunteered to assist the day force in handling the big crowd in the city. He carried a small accident policy, which will be of some pecuniary advantage while he is disabled.

FLAHERTY BADLY WOUND By Discharge of His Gun.

Flaherty, a young grocer on Ninth street, was painfully injured while hunting Friday. He was on the Illinois Central railroad, jumping out of the way of an incoming train, dropped his gun, and was discharged, the load of cartridges going through his chest. The wound is a serious one and amputation may be necessary. The shot also lodged in Flaherty's face.

AFTERMATH OF RESTAURANT FIGHT

Greeks Plan Vigorous Prosecution of The Young Men.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 28.—Vigorous prosecution of the young men who were engaged in the melee in the restaurant conducted by Greeks in this city, Tuesday morning, will be undertaken by Judge Ira Julian, who has been employed by the relatives of Stephen Theophanis, the man who was shot. George Theophanis, a brother of the wounded man, who formerly lived in Frankfort, but who now has a restaurant in an Illinois town, reached here this morning. He took prompt steps to see that justice is done.

The Greeks, who conduct the restaurant, say that they have been the victims of prosecution, and that an effort has been made to run them out of Frankfort. They say that they have been attacked and their restaurant torn up several times, and that there seemed to be a concerted effort on the part of certain men to drive them away from Frankfort. The affray of Tuesday morning was the culmination of the series of attacks on the Greeks, and they have determined to make this a test.

The Greek Government will probably take a hand, and even if nothing comes of the prosecution of the men who beat and shot Theophanis and his partner, it is likely that the cases will go into the Federal Court in a civil action for damages. It is reported that the wounded Greeks will file suit against the members of the crowd which was in the restaurant, and that the city of Frankfort also will be joined as defendant. The Greeks claim that they have not been given protection by the civil authorities.

Several Greeks, who live in Lexington came to Frankfort this morning to lend what aid they could to their countrymen in trouble here. A conference of the Greeks has been held, and they will meet again with Judge Julian to decide on what steps to take. They say they came to Frankfort to enter business and have behaved themselves, and yet they have been mistreated. Several times rows have occurred in the restaurant, and the place has been wrecked twice before Tuesday morning.

The examining trial of "Eph" Lillard, Jr., "Pat" Bohannon, Grover Land, "Red" Crumbaugh and Hugh Harrod will come up Friday, but it is not likely that the evidence will be heard. The cases probably will be continued and the same bonds hold good, as the Greek, who was shot is unable to be present at the trial. He is getting along nicely and probably will get well, unless some complication should arise. Dr. John Patterson is attending the wounded man and thinks he has a good chance to get well. He is getting careful attention, and spent a fairly comfortable night.

All sorts of rumors and report are floating about Frankfort as to what took place in the restaurant the night of the shooting, but both the Greeks and the men engaged in the row are keeping quiet and have but little to say. It is understood that the men who attacked the Greeks claim that Theophanis had a revolver and that he started the fight, and it is expected that this will be their line of defense.

I suffered for years from intense pains through my back and at times I was so lame and stiff that I could not get out of my bed. The kidney secretions were scanty and painful in passage. I doctored, but received no relief until a friend told me about Doan's Kidney Pills. He spoke so highly in their favor that I procured a supply. ## SON'S VOTE

Sold by Mother, She Admits --Man's Franchise Bought.

West Union, O., Dec. 29.—Two new features developed at the session of the special grand jury investigating wholesale buying of votes in Adams county. One was that of a woman selling her son's vote and the other concerned a voter who was bought in three different ways.

The woman is a widow who lives at Peebles. She is accused of having accepted $5 for her son's franchise. Both mother and son were indicted, but neither has been arrested.

A farmer in Jacksonville precinct who came in from Meigs township surprised the grand jury by his confession that he was bought three times last election day. For his promise to vote the straight Republican ticket he said he received $12.50; on a contract to vote the straight Democratic ticket he was paid $10, and the price for agreeing to vote for a certain Democratic candidate was $3. He pleaded guilty when arraigned and was disfranchised for five years, fined $5 and costs and given six months in the workhouse, with the prison sentence suspended.

DON'T GO WEST.

Girls, Unless You Want To Get Married.

Out in the far West there are so many more men than women that employers of single women are forced to extraordinary devices to keep their employees. A dispatch from Spokane recounts the fact that a young lady who applied for a position as telephone operator at a local hotel was required to furnish a $500 bond that she would not marry within six months, before she could get the job.—Post.

CELEBRATED TRENT AFFAIR

Came Very Near Being One of Things That Charge Whole Course of History.

The "Trent affair," which came off 49 years ago—November 8, 1861—came very near being one of the things that change the whole course of history. The Confederate commissioners, Mason and Slidell, were on their way from Havana to England on board the English mail steamer Trent. On the morning of the eighth of November Capt. Charles Wilkes, in command of the United States warship San Jacinto, held up the Trent, forcibly took from her the Confederate commissioners and delivered them up to the United States authorities at Fortress Monroe.

Then it was that William H. Seward began one of the astutest games of diplomacy that the history of the world can show. With consummate tact he managed to satisfy England without the slightest jolt to his country's honor or pride. Returning the commissioners to the British authorities as a "courtesy," rather than as a "duty," he got out of the difficulty without a scintilla of an "apology" and without so much as an intimation of any confession of wrong on the part of his government.

RACE SUICIDE AND FLATS

French Law Penalizes All Landlords Who Discriminate Against Children.

The nation that invented French flats and which is not guiltless regarding race suicide has become frightened regarding the cumulative effect of its in restraint of population, and is devising a remedy. Last year deaths exceeded births in France by 28,205, and the deputies have been introducing laws about it ever since. The latest one is reported by cable, and penalizes all renters of apartments who discriminate against children, hoping thus to make life easier for parents. Any landlord who refuses to let apartments to parents is liable to a fine of from 25 to 50 francs, and to be doubled upon a second offense.

The motive was praised in the deputies, but the details were criticised. It was proposed as a substitute that whenever flats failed to have a child population of 60 to each 20 families the landlord should be fined according to the deficiency in the proportion of children. Thus it was hoped to set the landlords bidding for parents who would save the landlord from fines.

REFERRED TO G. P.

Two ladies in the observation car of a train passing through the famous Gallatin valley in Montana were discussing the methods by which the soil was made to produce. "They must irrigate," one of them suggested.

"No," the other replied. "It's dry farming."
"What's that?"
The wise lady looked pained at her companion's ignorance. "It's the conservation of the national rainfall," she answered.—Lippincott's.

WHY THEY GOT CITY'S FREEDOM.

Extracts from old records, showing how people had earned the honor in former days, were read at Canterbury by Alderman Mason when the mayor and ex-mayor were granted the freedom of the city. One citizen received the freedom for "undertaking to serve as cook at every mayor's Michaelmas feast," another "because he cured Nicholas Johnson's leg," and a third "because he married a widow with a large family."—Pall Mall Gazette.

HISTORY IN PAGEANTS.

Miss Lotta Clark, director of the civic pageant of the city beautiful to be given in Boston, believes that children love pageants and that it is the duty of this generation to teach them in this way something of the days of old. History may be learned most interestingly, she thinks, by means of the pageant.

REGISTERS A PROTEST.

Mrs. Maria Ricker, the woman lawyer of Dover, N. H., who wanted to be governor of the state, has consented to pay her taxes, but registers the fact that she does so under protest, as she has not the right to vote, consequently should pay no taxes.

HOW GIRL WAS OUTWITTED

Judicious Use of Want Ad Columns Gives Housewife Cause for Exultation.

W. L. Hall, want ad man for the Journal, was checking up for the day and preparing to leave. The hands of the clock chronicled 11:45 p. m. The telephone rang.

"Will you put an ad in tomorrow evening's paper for me? I want a hired girl," called a sleepy feminine voice.

"Can you call in early tomorrow and have one of the clerks take it, please?" was the response of the ad man.

"But I want to give it now," pleaded the woman. "You see, the hired girl is in bed and asleep and I will not have a chance to telephone tomorrow without her hearing me. I went to bed early this evening to get her out of the way. As soon as I found she was asleep I came down stairs to get you."

"All right, then, let the ad come; we'll see that it gets in the evening paper," responded Hall.

The next evening the woman called in to say that she wanted the ad taken out. "The girl saw it and quit. I had two other applications within an hour after she left," was the exultant explanation.—Sioux City Journal.

The Teller (counting money)—Can't. I have my hands in the dough.

THAT HORRID LASSITUDE.

One of the curses of the age is that horrid feeling of lassitude that so many of us suffer from, but pay little heed to.

If a person has slept well at night it is not natural to be drowsy, sluggish, and inert during the day. If that is your normal condition go cause-searching.

Often the feeling is caused by a malarial condition and a little quinine or a change of air will overcome it.

Frequently it is due to overdoing; exhausted nerves is a recognized cause of a heavy brain and "draggy" bones.

Probably the chief cause is a weak stomach. Indigestion makes one sluggish, so does overeating without proper exercise.

The cures are normal living, plenty of fresh air and sunlight, and proper rest. It is decidedly dangerous to seek to overcome lassitude with drugs or stimulants. The effect is temporary and the reaction bad.

USELESS PECULATION.

"Metaphysics," said Mayor Crump at a Democratic banquet in Memphis, "is a subject that always makes me think of an elderly couple in Chattanooga."

"I often wonder," the wife said, sadly, one day to her husband, "whether all these vows and protestations you made me during our courtship were really true?"

"Well, my dear," the husband answered, mildly, "what's the difference whether they are true or not, since we both believed them?"

UNVEILED A TABLET.

The National Society of the Daughters of 1812 decorated the Polly, an aged vessel that was built in 1805. A tablet was placed on the vessel, which is now used as a freighter, telling her history and the part she played in the war of 1812. Mrs. N. S. D. Lincoln, who was present, is the granddaughter of the first captain of the Polly, and she is now the president of the Maine Daughters of 1812.

She Stayed In Bed.

Ingram, Texas.—"Ever since I became a woman," writes E. M. Evans, of this place. "I suffered from womanly troubles. Last fall, I got so bad, I had to stay in bed for nearly a week every month. Since I have taken Cardui, I feel better than I have for years." You can rely on Cardui. It acts on the womanly organs and helps the system to regain its normal state of health, in a natural way. Prepared especially for women, it prevents womanly pains by acting on the cause, and builds up womanly strength in a natural way. Purely vegetable. Mild, but certain in action. Try it.

JAPANESE DENTISTS.

Paris, Dec. 29.—A newspaper here presents to its readers an account of the methods employed by the Japanese dentist, which although perhaps not quite new, is of sufficient interest to warrant its publication. The dentist draws teeth with his fingers without the aid of any instruments. He takes the head of the patient in such a way that the mouth must remain open. Putting the thumb and index finger into the patient's mouth the Jap draws five, six, or seven teeth in a minute, as the case may be, the patient during this process being unable to close his mouth. This remarkable power in extracting teeth is attributed to the training the dentist undergoes in early youth. To strengthen the fingers for their later work the tyro commences by practicing on nails which are driven into a plank on the ground. He has to pull out the nails without moving the board. At the beginning of this nail pulling, a soft wood is used, and then harder wood up to oak or something still harder. An apprentice is not considered proficient in his art until he can draw the nails from the hardest wood without moving it.

Impure blood runs you down—makes you an easy victim for organic diseases. Burdock. Blood Bitters purifies the blood—cures the cause—builds you up.

How He Proved It.

An Irishman was once serving in a regiment in India. Not liking the climate, Pat tried to evolve a trick by which he could get home. Accordingly he went to the doctor and told him his eyesight was bad. The doctor looked at him for awhile and then said:

"How can you prove to me that your eyesight is bad?"

Pat looked about the room and at last said:

"Well, doctor, do ye see that nail upon the wall?"

"Yes," replied the doctor.

"Well, then," replied Pat, "I can't."—(Chicago Tribune.)

Dentist There.

"Success in the law," said Joseph H. Choate, at a dinner, "often depends on the ability to meet every objection readily."

"A clergyman, however, once carried this ability a little too far. He was addressing a prayer meeting, and in his description of the doom of the wicked he said:

"And there shall be weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth. Aye gnashing of teeth."

"A very old woman spoke up in a quavering and senile voice:

"But I ain't got no teeth, pastor."

"Then, madam, they will be provided," was the answer." (Chicago Tribune.)

COAL LAND DEAL.

WINCHESTER, Ky., Dec. 28.—The Rankin Coal Company, recently organized by J. C. C. Mayo, Gen. Percy Haley and others, closed the purchase this week of 7,000 acres of coking coal lands near Pound Gap, in Letcher county, at the reported price of $630,000. The land was purchased about twenty years ago by A. D. Bright and others from W. J. Horseley, at 50 cent to $1 per acre.

Was on Way to Wish Child- ren A Happy New Year

ROME, Italy, Jan. 1.—During the reception of senators and deputies by King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena in the quirinal today it was noticed that the queen appeared to be suffering considerable pain. Her majesty explained that she had had an accident. Just before midnight not wishing the new year to begin without kissing the children, she was making her way to their rooms when she stumbled on the staircase and fell injuring her left arm. The king rushed to the assistance of the queen who assured him that it was nothing serious, but added:

"I am sorry that New Year's begins badly."

To this the king retorted: "Just the contrary; the old year finished badly with your fall; the new year begins well because you are not hurt."

A physician was called in and the arm was placed in splints.

ONE OF LIFE'S ILLUSIONS

"And they lived happy ever after." That is the way the stories we heard in childhood always ended. The hero and heroine married, and then their troubles terminated. We were always glad when they were safely joined, and all trials were over, and everything was lovely.

Now, in real life, that period is just where trouble begins. It is a pity it is true, but so it is.

The young girl does not think so. Her young man does not think so. The old folks croak about it, but the young ones laugh at their evil-omened talk, and mutually assure each other that once they are married, everything will flow on as smoothly as a summer sea or a country mill pond.

And when, after marriage, storms arise, and things get tempestuous, the young people are disappointed, and accuse each other of being to blame, and they argue, and bicker, and twit, and make themselves generally uncomfortable, because they have not learned the lesson that we old stagers learned long ago, that life is a "warfare," and there is a good deal of fighting to be done before we can stand inside the fortress of peace and safety.

A woman might be an angel in skirt and shirt waist, and a man might be a masculine cherub in trousers and side whiskers, and still they cannot avoid trouble.

It is the common lot. Nobody "lives happy ever after." No matter how angelic your disposition, you are liable to have toothache. A saint, if he should get a pair of ill-fitting boots, would be just as likely to breed corns as the most hardened sinner on the footstool. If John Bunyan had eaten green apples, he would have had as good a chance for the stomachache as any irreverent writer of pirate stories. The fact that he conceived "Pilgrim's Progress" wouldn't have saved him.

We are all subject to the laws of universal nature, and we cannot evade them. We must take the consequences of being mortal.

We might just as well make up our minds to take things as they come, and let them come without going to meet them.

If you quarrel with your husband, console yourself with thinking that you are not the first woman who has done it, and you will probably not be the last. And it isn't likely that you will live more than ninety-five or a hundred years to follow it up. And if you die first, he will tell the minister who presides at the funeral that you never gave him a cross word in your life, and that you and he always thought alike.

So your memory will be saved.

If your children turn out bad, take the comfort home to you that other people have bad children and have lived through it. It is one of those things which is happening right along every day, and there is nothing remarkable about it.

Life is a series of disenchantments. In our youth we cherish illusions, and when experience has swept them away we find fault with fate and with Providence, and think we are hardly used.

Every life, however sheltered and protected, has its sorrows and trials. We cannot hope to escape them. But we can make them lighter by accepting them as natural consequences, and being willing to bear them as a part of our discipline; just as we bore the hard seats and the cross teacher in school; just as we bore the spankings our good mother gave us in our younger days, to teach us that our ways were not her ways, and to impress upon us the fact that all the way along there is a guiding hand higher than our own will which shapes and directs our immortal destiny.

Feats of a Champion Swordsman.

Squadron Corporal Major Eggleton, one of the finest swordsmen in the British army, is retiring shortly from the Royal Horse Guards (Blues) after 21 years' service.

One of the corporal major's sword feats is to cut in two an apple resting on the neck of a kneeling assistant. After a swift downward sword cut the halves of the apple roll away and the assistant rises unharmed. Another feat is with a horizontal stroke to sever an apple placed on a man's head.

The corporal major has won many prizes at the military tournament and has given displays of his skill before Queen Victoria, the late King Edward and King George.

Not the Place for It.

He was writing the libretto for a comic opera. Suddenly he smiled. He had stumbled on a brand new joke.

He was a student of jokes, a collector, a reviser, an adapter, a faddist. He subjected the joke to every known test. Finally he gave it the third degree.

There was no longer any doubt of its originality.

He read his manuscript over carefully and, sighing heavily, stared at the joke.

He realized there was no place for it in the libretto.

So he left it out and went on writing.

Labor and Leisure.

Labor without leisure is drudgery to the man; leisure without labor is a crime against society.

BINDON'S CURE

In view of the many fatal illnesses which Robert Bindon had enjoyed it was remarkable that he was still alive and well. No one ever would have suspected him of being a weakling. Bindon was thirty-six, over six feet tall and broad correspondingly, and ate three good meals each day. Further, he did enough work for ten ordinary men, yet every summer, when he had a breathing space, he always ran across to Europe and immediately approached death's door.

The attacks always hit him when he reached Sonderbad, which was noted for its medicinal springs. Of course, an easy solution of the difficulty would seem to be staying away from Sonderbad, but he had got into the habit of going there. Especially did he depend on Dr. Jana, who always attended him and with great difficulty dragged him back from dissolution. Bindon thought Dr. Jana one of the wonders of the human race and often talked about him to Juanita Drane before they were married.

Juanita was one of those ethereal, fragile-looking creatures who always run things to suit themselves without any one's suspecting how in creation they do it. Apparently she was a clinging vine and a bundle of nerves, and she sympathized sweetly with Bindon when he mourned over his sufferings and sighed because illness wasted so much time for him.

"It's dreadful to be so afflicted," he told her, "but it can't be helped."

Juanita said that she supposed it couldn't.

Bindon and she had been married several months when they went to Europe. There Bindon enjoyed her pleasure in the sights, new to her, though old to him. Like a boy let out of school, he joyously conducted the trip. Naturally, therefore, his wife was alarmed one day to see him holding his head and looking serious.

"Don't worry, love," he told her solemnly, "but I fear I am going to have an attack of something. I can feel it coming on!"

Just as Juanita's heart stopped beating in dread she recalled something that sent the blood back to her cheeks—she remembered that the train was approaching Sonderbad and she also remembered a vow which she had privately made back in the days before she married Bindon.

She did not go into hysterics, as he had half expected she would, but merely said he must get to the hotel as soon as possible and lie down. Then when he faintly requested her to make haste if she would save his life, she sent for Dr. Jana. Leaving Bindon a beautifully patient sufferer, Juanita hastened down stairs and lay in wait for her husband's physician.

There was a light in her blue eyes that spoke determination.

Dr. Jana was charmed to meet the wife of his so distinguished patient, but he said he must hasten to the sufferer. Then to his amazement he found himself dragged by a small white hand into a secluded corner, while a remarkably pretty face bent close to his whiskered one. "Juanita concentrated all her nervous force on her hypnotic gaze and her German verbs.

"See here, Dr. Jana," she said in a sudden clear, new tone that held the famous doctor in instant attention. "Before you go upstairs to Robert I want to tell you what you are to say. He isn't sick—not a bit! There isn't a thing the matter with him! He's just full of imagination and he's got the habit of coming over to Sonderbad every year and trying to die, and I won't have it! His state of mind is a nuisance, because it spoils our trip! I want you to go and tell him that he is well and that nothing is wrong—do you understand!"

There are some things that even an autocratic physician can't manage, and Dr. Jana recognized that Juanita was one of them. Still hypnotized, he felt himself going upstairs to the invalid.

"No!" he said, gruffly, "you are not going blind! Those shooting pains come from smoking! Stop cigars for a couple of days and your eyes will be all right!"

His patient described some more symptoms.

"No!" barked Dr. Jana. "You haven't got cancer of the stomach! It's indigestion from overloading it!"

A little later he roared: "No, it isn't paralysis in your leg—you've just cramped a muscle from lying in bed! There isn't a thing the matter with you, Herr Bindon!"

"Isn't it lovely!" Juanita cooed when the great Dr. Jana had left and she was throwing up the window shades and removing the glasses and spoons that Bindon had already ordered set out for his medicines.

"Dr. Jana says you're all right! I'm so relieved! And we can go on to Vienna tomorrow, can't we, dear?"

"If I'm well enough," said her husband, severely.

"Why, aren't you going to get up now?" demanded his wife in a surprised tone. "I want to walk through the town, and today's our only chance!"

"Juanita," said Bindon in a hurt voice, as he clambered out of bed, "if I die it's your fault, but I'll sacrifice myself and go! I think Dr. Jana is getting old—it's quite apparent that he isn't as good as he used to be!"

That was the end of Bindon's series of fatal illnesses at Sonderbad.

After Marriage

By CLAUDINE SISSON

Mrs. Clarence Vhay, a bride of six weeks, was lazily strolling along the banks of the river just outside the village of Ferndale. She had come down from the old farmhouse on the hill where the peach and apple and cherry trees were in blossom, and where Uncle Zeb and Aunt Mary had welcomed the bridal couple two weeks before.

A bridal tour of a few days and then Clarence had returned to his place in the bank. Ferndale was handy to the city, and they were to pass the summer on the old farm.

"Susie, remember what Clarence told you about the boat," cautioned the aunt as the bride set forth from the house.

The words started a train of thought that was both pleasant and unpleasant. Sitting on the bank of the river the young wife gave herself up to it. She had married Clarence Vhay for love. Not once during their two years of courtship had they quarreled. She could say they hadn't even differed. He was as kind and considerate as could be asked for. He paid homage to a queen. He deferred to her in every way. She could not mention one short-coming as she sat there leaning against the old willow.

And there was the paradox—she was not satisfied that she couldn't. She was wishing that she could. She knew that she had a temper. She was self-willed and obstinate. She loved argument—when she knew that she had the best of it. And Clarence had insisted that she hadn't a fault—not one. She had said do this and do that and he had obeyed. All womankind like courtesy and gallantry, but few like blind devotion. When the news of the marriage came down to the farmhouse Aunt Mary had said to Uncle Zeb:

"Well, I do hope Susie has married the right man. If she has she'll make a fine woman. He's got to be a man who can boss her. That's what she and a heap of other brides need—a boss. Give 'em their own way and they'll go through the world flippety-flop and never amount to shucks."

And three or four days after the bridal couple had come down she had more to say to Uncle Zeb. She said:

"Pa, I guess Susie's got the right man."

"Oh, he loves her, I guess," was the answer.

"And he'll boss her, too."

"He ain't doin' it very much now."

"But you jest wait. He's one of the quiet kind. He's got to be aroused before the fur flies. He's lettin' her lead him around like a calf now, but the day will come when he'll break the rope."

"And then what's going to happen?"

"Susie will either eat humble pie or run away. It'll be accordin' to how he does. If he just flares up she'll run; if he picks her up and shakes her till her teeth chatter she'll turn out a good wife."

And down by the old willow tree the bride continued to muse. There was something lacking in the character of Clarence. She couldn't just name it, but she realized it. She went all over the matter, but failed to grasp it. She had married as happily as the average girl, but—

What was it? Wasn't she perfectly happy? Yes. No-o-o. Then her eyes rested on the old skiff tied to the bank and an inspiration came. That very morning before leaving for town Clarence had said:

"Darling, your husband wants you to promise him something. If you go down to the river today don't try to paddle around in the old skiff. You may be carried down stream and over the dam, and drowned, and then what would become of me?"

And as she started out on her walk Aunt Mary had called a reminder. Clarence had scented danger. He had the common sense to see that a leaky old boat with a piece of board for a paddle was no plaything for her. Yes, but why hadn't he said so in plain, straight language? Why not have said:

"Susie, if you go down to the river keep out of that old boat. Mind, now—no fooling around."

She was vexed at the thought that he hadn't said so, and yet she might have been vexed at him if he had. However, she would show him and Aunt Mary that she was no baby. There was a foot of water in the old boat. She bailed it out with the rusty old dipper. She got one foot wet and spattered her white dress, but she was pleased over it. She was having her way. She got into a hammock, and she knew she could get into a skiff. Yes, she accomplished it, after falling flat on the bottom.

The bride had seen a girl standing up and paddling a canoe on Lake George. She therefore stood up to paddle a skiff on Plumtree river. There was a difference. The difference was that the bride came so near upsetting the boat that it dipped a barrel of water and she fell into it with a great splash and lost her paddle in so doing. There wasn't a single plumtree on the banks of Plumtree river. They were all alders and blackberry bushes and wild grape vines. It was a modest river and shrank from observation behind these things.

The bride was bound for the dam and the grave beyond. There could be no doubt of that.

This bride came to realize this fact, and she sat still while the boat rolled along on the current. When she came in sight of the sawmill at the dam old Uncle Eph Johnson, the owner, would be there, but he was so near sighted that he could not tell a young married woman from an oak sawlog. And if he did make her out he had only one leg to swim with and couldn't reach her in time. It was no use to hope. The thing to do was to compose her features and die with a smile on her face, as if she really liked drowning.

But at last a man appeared. He divested himself of coat, hat, vest and shoes. He cried out something. He gesticulated.

It proved to be Clarence! The bank had shut up an hour earlier than usual to let him get home to his bride. Had he come too late?

The bride closed her eyes and floated on. She was not cross. She was simply resigned. She heard a mighty splash as the husband leaped far out into the stream; she heard his deep breath as he struggled with the billows; she felt the jar when he reached the skiff. Then she thought she hears him say:

"What in thunder does this mean! Didn't I tell you to keep out of this blamed old boat?"

"Sir—sir—" she interrupted as the boat reached the land and she felt it was time to assert her authority.

"Don't be sirring me!" shouted Clarence as he whirled her out of the skiff and gave her a shake and stood her on her feet hard.

"Now, then come along for the house, and run every step of the way."

"You—you are Clarence?" she halted to ask.

"Yes, by thunder, and your husband, too, and don't you stop to say another word!"

Two days later, as Uncle Zeb sat on his splint-bottomed chair in the veranda, Aunt Mary came out to say:

"Pa, do you hear Susie singin' upstairs?"

"Guess I do. Singin' 'cause she didn't go over the dam, eh?"

"No, sir. Singin' 'cause she's found her boss! It always makes us happy!"

ROAD SCHEME WAS ENDORSED

By The Good Roads Meeting At Louisville Last Week.

The so called Good Roads meeting in Louisville last week was, as expected, packed with men favoring the scheme to levy taxes upon counties that have built their own roads to construct metal roads in less progressive counties. County Attorney J. C. Duffy, Judge Walter Knight and Chas. E. Barker from Christian county opposed the scheme, but the program was put through as prepared and a final draft of the threat bill was ordered to be presented to the next legislature.

John C. Duffy, of Christian county, opposed the measure, but asserted that he was in favor of good roads. He spoke in opposition to the 5 cent tax. He said that Christian county does not oppose the measure because of selfishness, because the county would pay in about the same amount that it would receive.

He declared that there was need for county roads, but not state roads, and asserted that the latter are used only by the tramp, the Gypsy wagon or the touring car. He said that the turnpike is a convenience and not a necessity. He said that it was a taxation of the many for the benefit of a few.

He asserted that while it was claimed good roads make for wealth and greater population, counties which have good roads have not gained in population, but on the other hand the mountain districts have gained in population.

Christian county, said Mr. Duffy, would get about $7,000 and pay out about $7,000.

However, he declared, the reasons for opposition are not selfish. He said he believed the people of Kentucky are not ready to be taxed hundreds of thousands of dollars for new roads, and that there is no such thing as a free lunch.

During the meeting, Mr. Duffy was taken by counsel and 15-cent costive, and sent them to the West Virginia, China, and the Black L. The healthy youngster will not desert the table so long as there is any food on it.

AMUSEMENTS

A Beauty Show.

The California Girls' Company, which appears at Holland's Opera House, Tuesday night, Jan 10, has seven big vaudeville acts, headed by Miss Rose Lewis, sensational trapeze artist, known as the Queen of the Air; Boss & Boss, European novelty act; Ida Bell, singing and dancing soubrette; Trueheart, Dillon & Burke, eccentric comedy trio; Hazel Grant, comedienne; Johnson & Lambert, German comedians and M'le Carina & Co., in the sensational French pantomime "Caught in the Act," introducing her famous Cleopatra dance. In conjunction with the above Olio of Merit the Company will produce two big musical comedy burlesques, entitled "A Breezy Affair" and "In Jungle Land," with a Big Beauty Chorus. Replete with up-to-date musical numbers, elaborate costumes, special scenic and electrical effects.

Kill More Than Wild Beasts.

The number of people killed yearly by wild beasts don't approach the vast number killed by disease germs. No life is safe from their attacks. They're in air, water, dust, even food. But grand protection is afforded by Electric Bitters, which destroy and expel these deadly disease germs from the system. That's why chills, fever and ague, all malarial and many blood diseases yield promptly to this wonderful blood purifier. Try them, and enjoy the glorious health and new strength they'll give you. ### Probably A Mistake.

Lindstrom's orchestra had Christmas week booked up solid and it had to decline an offer to play in Hopkinsville.—Henderson Journal.

This is probably a mistake. Lebkuecher's orchestra in this city is the best in Western Kentucky and Hopkinsville never has to call upon outsiders.

Ends Winter's Troubles.

To many, winter is a season of trouble. The frost-bitten toes and fingers, chapped hands and lips, chilblains, cold-sores, red and rough skins, prove this. But such troubles fly before Bucklen's Arnica Salve. A trial convinces. Greatest healer of Burns, Boils, Piles, Cuts, Sores, Bruises, Eczema and Sprains. Only 25c at all druggists.

COFFEE GOES UP.

Syndicate in Control of The World's Supply.

New York, Jan. 1.—Coffee has advanced a trifle more than 4 cents a pound for all grades, owing to the rapidly shrinking visible supply and a scheme to control the amount put on the market. Further rises may be expected if the valorization committee, which jealously guards the world's supply in the interest of the producers, cannot be prevailed upon to let out its reserve stocks at a more rapid rate. If the present rate of advance in price is maintained coffee will become a luxury within another year.

American coffee merchants literally have to go a begging before the representative of the committee in this country every time they want him to loosen up for another thousand bags.

Meanwhile the coffee syndicate has had the benefit of a remarkable advance in the prices of its collateral holidays. When the valorization agreement between the bankers and the government of Brazil was signed and for some time after, coffee at Havre was selling below the limit of 47 francs for 50 kilos at which the syndicate was authorized to part with his first installment of 500,000 bags. During 1909 and 1910 coffee advanced to the present price of 69 50 francs for December, or 33.00 francs above the minimum limit. By the mere advance of the market the 60,000,000 bags have added to the value of the syndicate's holdings $26,000,000.

"Twenty-one years ago I faced an awful death," writes, H. B. Martin, Port Harrelson, S. C. "Doctors said I had consumption and the dreadful cough I had looked like it, sure enough. I tried everything, I could hear of, for my cough, and was under the treatment of the best doctor in Georgetown, S. C. for a year, but could get no relief. A friend advised me to try Dr. King's New Discovery. I did so, and was completely cured. I feel that I owe my life to this great throat and lung cure. ## FOURTH NUMBER

Of Lyceum Course One of The Best.

The Sol Marcosson—Rennay Co., is the next number at the Tabernacle.

Mr. Marcosson combines the rare gift of appealing to the musically cultured with the verity of his art, and of making real and tangible to the layman in his audience something of the beauties and meaning of the music he invokes from his famous violin. He is gifted with a sympathetic imagination, clear but technical skill and a rare poetic and artistic temperament.

Mr. Rennay has made for himself a unique position in the field of Song Recital, Chamber Concerts and private musicales in England, France and America.

His voice is a baritone of wide range, rich in culture and resonant.

Critics are unanimous in pronouncing his diction the most perfect of any singer now before the public. Tuesday Jan. 3, 1911.

A specific for pain—Dr. Thomas' Eclectic Oil, strongest, cheapest liniment ever devised. A household remedy in America for 25 years.

Midshipmen Resign.

Three midshipmen at the Naval Academy recently graduated have resigned from the naval service to engage in civil pursuits. They are Midshipmen Henry H. Fox, of St. Louis; William N. Baratt, Jr., and J. E. Sloan, of South Carolina.

Merit Wins.

The year just closed has been one of the most successful in the history of Elgin Drug Store. Every department has shown a decided gain—Stationery, Candy, Rexall Remedies—but our special pride is in the Prescription Department.

Our files for 1910 show an increase of 4,344 over our first year in business and also a gain of 486 over 1909. There's a cause for this steady yet rapid growth. Let me tell you the secret. The Prescription Department is under my direct, personal supervision. No order from a doctor is too small or of too little value to have anything less than our best thought and attention—a 25c prescription is given the same care as a $2.00 one—nor has science discovered a drug or chemical too good for our humblest patron. Our customers become our friends.

We also recognize the knowledge and skill of the physician and recommend that all in need of medical advice apply to the proper source for treatment. Go to your doctor for advice and bring your prescriptions to us and they will be correctly and conscientiously filled.
